County makes plans for juvenile facility

BY LIZ HAAS AND JACQUI COCHRAN

Hancock County Sheriff Ronnie Peterson addressed the county board of supervisors in a Thursday workshop on the creation of a juvenile holding space at the county justice facility.

The state mandated that juvenile offenders, runaways and children in protective custody must be separated by sight and sound from adult prisoners by March 1994.

Peterson met with the state firemarshall and architect Fred Wagner on the possibility of erecting a block wall in the justice facility to completely separate the juveniles from the adults.

"This would be less expensive than trying to get our own center; the only cost would be for erecting the wall, a door and having a guard," he said.

Peterson said the juveniles would be transported through the administration office, not through the jail.

The facility will separately house up to eight males and four females.

"It will be simple, inexpensive and will meet the sight and sound separation requirements," he said.

Peterson was instructed by the board to get a design and estimate from Wagner to be presented at the next official meeting.

Monday, the board placed on

Waveland gives Little League $500 in support

BY LIZ HAAS

Waveland Little League president David Billingsley requested the Waveland Board of Aldermen provide funds to support the league on Tuesday.

He said more than 300 children are enrolled in the program this year, and the season will begin soon.

Billingsley cited the need for uniforms and a pitching machine to raise the league's competitive level. The board approved a donation of $500.

Bobby Spikes, assistant branch manager for finance and investment of the U.S. Small Business Administration, gave a presentation to the board, "SBA and Your Community."

He discussed loan programs, including acquiring bank loans with SBA's guarantee in which the applicant and bank negotiate the loan. Other loans can be fronted from the SBA, when funds are available.

The board approved to give the mayor the authorization to sign a proclamation naming Brett Favre and Joy Nell Lee as outstanding athletes of Hancock County.

Both attended Hancock High School where Favre excelled in football and Lee was a star basketball player.

Favre quarterbacked for the Green Bay Packers. Lee coached basketball for the Memphis State Tigers in Tennessee.

The board approved:

—to sell back a parcel in the Waveland Terrace Subdivision (Terrace Avenue), assessed to William E. Ellis to Valerie Ellis Franklin, administrator, in the amount of $134;

—to sell back a parcel on Chesapeake Street, assessed to Lynn H. Loisel, to Lynn Loisel, in the amount of $368;

—to sell back three parcels in Shoreline Park for $84, $17, $17, on Chesapeake Street, assessed to Gulf Pines, Inc., to Lynn Loisel in the total amount of $119;

—request from The Sea Coast

Echo to put ad in "Happy Easter Page" with cost of $20;

—authorization for Police Chief Jimmy Varnell and assistant chief Sam Henley to attend the Mississippi Association Chiefs of Police summer conference in Gulfport April 12-16, with cost of $50;

—ratify a poll vote taken March 30, authorizing mayor to sign a resolution authorizing the filing of an application for a Small Cities Community Development Block Grant for 1992 funds;

—the minutes and docket.

Pearlington ditch work criticized by residents

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

A ditch in Pearlington brought two residents before the Hancock County Board of Supervisors Monday with complaints of poor work.

Suzie Hobbs, 6178 Maple Drive, and Patrice St. Clair, 6020 Maple Drive, described a drainage problem, they claimed was non-existent until county workers replaced a culvert.

Both women said, they had complained of the drainage overflow to the road and bridge department and to department supervisor Sam Cuevas.

"It's not even the unit system's fault," St. Clair interjected before the board, "it is incompetent work."

The women told of overflow into their yards, holes in the street caused by washout from the overflow and odor permeating the area.

Cuevas requested and received board authority for county engineer Larry Seal to evaluate the problem.

The Maple Drive residents stated, the drainage problem has been ongoing since 1988.

BSL plans bike path

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

Bay St. Louis Clerk of Council Mike Cuevas announced Tuesday application preparation for various 1994 grants, one of which will create bicycle paths throughout the city.

The proposed path, Cuevas said, would be based on a 1980 study that mapped various city streets into a connecting route.

"Nothing is set in stone," she commented. Proposed streets included: Ulman and Dunbar avenues; Old Spanish Trail; Washington Street; and Beach Boulevard.

She reported preparation has begun for another Federal Intermodal Surface Transportation Efficiency Act (ISTEA) grant. This one to tie in the depot area on a broader scope with surrounding businesses and services.

The city was recently awarded a $804,000, which is an 80/20 split, with the city contributing the lower percentage.

She said survey work is near completion for a CDBG Public Facilities Grant to be used for sewer improvements and extensions within the city.

Monies were also reported available for housing grants, for moderate income families wishing to repair or add to their homes.

Depot grounds work begins

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

The Bay St. Louis City Council approved Tuesday payment of $2,650 to Phillip Remel for professional services relating to tree trimming and grounds layout surrounding the train depot.

Payment to Remel, as well as future grounds work, is being financed by receipt of a $22,900 Urban Forestry Grant.

City clerk of council Mike Cuevas stated, one hour prior to the next council meeting (April 20) a public hearing will be conducted at City Hall Annex for input on grounds design.

A master plan of the proposed grounds will be presented at that time.

AMERICAN: The council approved an expenditure of $2,000 for advertisement with Bay St. Louis's Sunset Limited run.

The advertisement will be distributed between Los Angeles, Calif. and Miami, Fla. in 200,000 brochures.

PUBLIC FORUM
During public forum, resident Franya Ethridge questioned the existence of a Site Plan Review Committee.

Mayor Eddie Favre explained, though the Site Plan Review Committee did not meet as a formal unit, those who were named as members performed the same service through their related jobs.

Members of that committee are the city fire chief, mayor, building inspector and a planning and zoning committee members.

Ethridge questioned whether the city intends to extending zoning into the waters of the Mississippi Sound, thereby extending city control over potential gaming developments along the beach.

Correction

In a Thursday story on the issuance of industrial revenue bonds to Mardi Gras Corporation for construction of a hotel/golfing complex, it was incorrectly reported the property proposed for construction would revert to the county should Casino Magic fail to repay the bonds.

Board of supervisors attorney Gerald Gex explained, the bond holder, "whoever purchases the bonds" would receive the properties should payment not be met.

Gex stressed, the county will not be responsible for the bonds, their payment or properties involved.

In that same article, it was reported during discussion of a tax exemption incentive, supervisor (Dist. 2) Alton "Dolph" Kellar made a statement referring to the county not denying others.

Kellar was referring to the county not denying others as a bond sponsor, not of the tax exempt status.

Combined Federal Campaign opens application process

Nonprofit health and human service agencies interested in taking part in the Combined Federal Campaign (CFC) may submit applications throughout April, according to Mississippi Gulf Coast CFC's 1993 chairman Capt. John Lehman.

Capt. Lehman is commanding officer of the Naval Construction Battalion Center, Gulfport.

Locally, the Combined Federal Campaign is conducted each Fall in Hancock, Harrison, Jackson, Pearl River, Stone and George counties.

Under the direction of the Mississippi Coast Association of Federal Administrators, CFC offers all federal civilian and military employees at area installations the opportunity to contribute to voluntary, nonprofit organizations.

In the Fall 1992 campaign, area federal employees donated more than $665,000 to local, national and international nonprofit organizations.

To be eligible to receive CFC donations, agencies must apply annually for listing in the CFC campaign brochure. Federal regulations governing the campaign require applicants to furnish a copy of their annual report and audit, plus other items, to ensure their accountability and efficient operation.

Clarification

In an April 8 front page story entitled "HHS nixes exam exemption policy" The Sea Coast Echo reported that Superintendent Myrna Bourgeois announced Hancock High School will remove the exam exemption from the school board manual for next school year.

Bourgeois presented to the board that the students, teachers and administration of Hancock High wanted the policy deleted and the school board unanimously approved to withdraw the policy.

Application forms may be obtained from the CFC Office at United Way of South Mississippi, Inc., 2315 17th Street, Gulfport, or by calling 863-4884.

Deadline for applications is 5 p.m., April 30. Applications should be mailed to the Local Federal Coordinating Committee, 1993 Mississippi Gulf Coast CFC, c/o United Way of South Mississippi, Inc., P.O. Box 1172, Gulfport, MS 39502.

203 Citizen Street

One more chance

Bay St. Louis council holds back demolition

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

The Bay St. Louis City Council held back acceptance of a bid for the demolition of this house at 203 Citizen Street, giving owner Chris Lagarde one last opportunity to take action.

Councilman John Wilkenson said, he was tired of waiting and Lagarde had been given enough chances to repair or remove the burned remains of the house.

Councilman Charles Sciana questioned the liability involved, reminding council members of a contractor's recent withdrawal of a bid on the job after allegedly being threatened with a lawsuit by Lagarde.

City attorney John Seafide said, the city is not liable as long as state statutes are followed.

City clerk of council Mike Cuevas was instructed to contact Lagarde, one last time, requesting him to comply with the city's request, or demolition would take place.

Compliance deadline nears for county farmers

Farmers who participate in United States Department of Agriculture farm program benefits are fast moving up on the Jan. 1, 1995, deadline for complying with conservation provisions of the 1985 and 1990 farm bills.

It may seem like a long way off but for many, especially for those who must apply structural measures (like terraces) to their land, the clock is ticking. As the deadline grows nearer, the work backlog of contractors building these structures gets bigger.

USDA's Soil Conservation Service is charged with providing technical assistance to landowners and landusers to help meet their plant's deadline.

A big concern is for absentee landowners, that is, those landowners who live in another state. If a renter makes the decision not to apply conservation practices, it will make the land ineligible for some 25 available federal benefit programs. In that case, it would be hard for the landowner to find a farmer willing to rent the land.

Cost is a big issue for many farmers in implementing their compliance plans. Larry Robertson, ASCS, Benton County director, said farmers are concerned with the deadline as well as with the costs of implementation.

"Our farmers are concerned about the deadline and are doing all that they can to make sure that these farms are in compliance by the time expiration and they are fully aware that time is running out on them," Robertson said. He pointed out that terraces are a high priority with the farmers who deal with ASCS. "We spend the majority of our funds on the installation of terraces," he said.

In Hancock County, Harold Dungan, district conservationist, said, "I feel that most landusers who were concerned about their farm's program eligibility for the beginning have completed a large portion of their planned practices and we have some who just procrastinate."

"They will put it off with excuses from maybe the program will change, to I'll probably change with the new administration."

"Fact is, it's the law, and unless it changes, you must be in compliance to be eligible for federal benefits, and if you plan to maintain one of your most valuable natural resources, the land, something has got to be done."

"QUOTABLE QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

If you haven't passed the depot in Bay St. Louis in recent months, you will be suprised at the changes already made.

The platform is in place and sure stands out since the railings have been painted white.

The grounds are really taking shape too. Tons and tons of debris have been removed.

While on the subject of the grounds, I would like to personally thank Paul McElveen, manager of Kmart, Chocktaw Plaza Shopping Center, Waveland, for donating a ton of fertilizer through the chamber's beautification committee, which will be used on the grounds at the depot.

Fertilizer is one of the items which the grounds at the depot has probably missed for 20 or 30 years.

It will really come in handy, as the trees really need a good feeding and new grass will too.

If you haven't recently, drive by the depot in Bay St. Louis and see the changes, and many more are to come.

The storm which struck the area Thursday was a long time in coming, as we were scheduled to get rain for several days before it came.

We really knew it when the rains got here though, as the winds were close to hurricane force.

After the storm passed, my white auto had changed to green in color from all the fresh leaves from the live oaks in the area.

The winds were just too strong for the tender leaves. It has been some time since we had a spring storm of the magnitude of the one on Thursday.

We are lucky we did not get the severe damages Grand Isle, La., received from the same storm which struck our area.

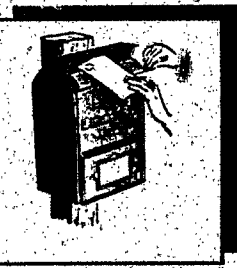

There were a few trees and limbs that tumbled down in our area and a lot of sand blown across our beach.

Crews were busy Friday trying to remove some of the sand.

Power company workers were busy Thursday with isolated outages. Some folks may think all those power company people do is ride around in those brightly colored trucks.

To really see what they do, whenever there is a storm, one may get out their foul weather gear and follow them around for a few hours, especially when the lightening is crashing around.

I guess every job has its good and bad points.

IN CONGRESS

Taylor supports reductions in Congressional mailing allowances

Since being elected to Congress, I have taken great pains to curtail all unnecessary spending within South Mississippi's congressional offices. There is a very small minority, though, who argue I am wasting my time by trying to save a little here and a little there, at a time when our nation struggles to tackle a $4.2 trillion debt. I must disagree. No time is ever wasted saving taxpayers' money, no matter how trivial the amount may seem at the time.

The problem may stem from the adage: "If you don't use it you'll lose it." I believe there are several ways Congress can reverse this type of inappropriate mindset.

For example, recently, I cosponsored a bill that will reduce the amount each Congressman can spend on franking, or commonly known as postage. The bill would cut my franking budget and my colleagues' franking budgets by 20 percent.

In keeping with the concerns of the majority of Americans, the savings (roughly $9 million) would go toward reducing the deficit. As anyone would agree, a small savings eventually adds to large savings.

Throughout the past few years, I have abstained from spending nearly 60 percent of my total franking allowance. During these years, I had no problem responding to the tens of thousands of South Mississippians who wrote letters or phoned to voice their concern on specific issues. In 1992 alone, I only spent 54 percent of my total franking allowance, saving taxpayers $67,965.

Additionally, I have publicly stated in recent weeks that I will no longer be mailing congressional newsletters (sometimes referred to as mass mailings). I can no longer justify the cost of each congressional newsletter, which totals $30,000 for 247,649 pieces of mail delivered.

Even though more than 80 percent of all South Mississippians, who have responded to previous newsletters, requested they receive at least two newsletters a year, the expense is too costly in this day and age. I believe the money could be put to better use, or better yet, used for deficit reduction.

I have made very effort to reduce the cost of operating South Mississippi's congressional offices, while at the same time, making myself accessible to those who have given me the opportunity to serve. I am hopeful my colleagues will join me in my efforts to cut congressional franking allowances by supporting this bill. In the long run, it all adds up.

THE PEOPLE'S BUSINESS

From the Mississippi Economic Council

Don't wonder about what could have been

Last week, German automaker Mercedes-Benz announced that it is planning to build a plant in the United States for the production of a new four-wheel drive vehicle.

Let's hope Mississippi's economic development officials were listening.

Mercedes expects to spend around $650 million on this project, which would employ 1,500 workers when the plant begins production in 1997. No estimate has been made on the impact on the local economy, but it isn't difficult to imagine what it would be.

Early speculation puts North Carolina and South Carolina at the top of the list, mainly because of the current location of a Mercedes subsidiary in the area. But, that doesn't mean other states aren't going to beat a path to Mercedes' front door in an effort to woo them to their neck of the woods.

If Mississippi isn't one of those states, then there's something wrong.

Mississippi has a strong labor force, one ready and willing to manufacture quality products.

Mississippi has potential locations accessible to major transportation lanes, such as the Mississippi River, the Tennessee Waterway, and the Gulf Coast ports.

Mississippi, we hope, has the desire to go after this economic development jewel. If we don't at least try, then we'll always wonder about what could have been.

REPORT FROM THE SENATE

Legislators approve teacher pay raises, health insurance; absentee voting, welfare restructuring

For the first time since 1988, the regular legislative session adjourned on the scheduled date of Sunday, April 4. Senators filed 1,175 bills and 150 concurrent resolutions during the 1993 session. The House of Representatives added 1,683 bills and 200 concurrent resolutions to the legislative docket.

Senators spent hundreds of hours in the last 90 days discussing, debating and acting on nearly 3,200 individual pieces of legislation.

The final week of floor action has finalized measures to be taken on issues such as teacher pay raises and health insurance, absentee voting laws, welfare restructuring, developing markets for our state's agricultural products and industry.

House Bill 822 increases the amount the state contributes into the teacher group insurance plan. Senate Bill 2844 revises teacher salaries. It provides for all teachers to receive a $550 increase in base salary and an increase of their increment pay. It also allocates $80 a month to be used for health insurance benefits. The pay scale according to teacher certification is as follows:

* A Certificate receives $550 base increase and $375 increment increase for a total package of $925.

* AA Certificate receives $550 base increase and $450 increment increase for a total package of $1,000.

* AAA Certificate receives base increase and $500 increment increase for a total package of $1,050.

* AAAA Certificate receives $550 base increase and $440 increment increase for a total package of $1,100.

Teacher assistants would receive a $600 raise per year. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after July 1, 1993. It is the intent of the Legislature that, in order to improve instructional and administrative quality, salary increases for local personnel may be addressed during the 1994 Regular Session by the Task Force developed for Restructuring the Minimum Education Program created under Senate Bill 2849, 1993 Regular Session.

Absentee voting laws were address in Senate Bill 723. Any person who is qualified to register to vote in Mississippi may register by mail-in application at least 60 days prior to any election. The date of registration is set as the post-marked date of the mail-in application.

Certain types of identification must be presented by persons who wish to vote prior to casting a vote. A person may vote absentee if he or she will be away from their county of residence for any reason or if he is required to be at work on election day during the times at which polls will be open.

The number of days a voter may vote absentee prior to an election has been extended from 15 days to 45 days if done so in the registrar's office. Mailed ballots can now be received by 5 p.m. on the day of the election. The registrar may also use a FAX machine to transmit absentee ballot applications and receive completed applications. This bill attempted to further address voter fraud complaints.

Senate Bill 2718 has also become known as the Mississippi Welfare Restructuring Act of 1993. It seeks to implement the Federal Family Support Act of 1988 which requires all able-bodied persons to participate in the JOBS program for a minimum of 20 hours per week. The bill also provides for an extension of Medicaid coverage for up to 12 months for families that become ineligible for AFDC because of increased earnings or hours of employment.

The theory behind the bill is to simplify and consolidate the administration of affected federal welfare programs, and give project recipients greater incentive and ability to succeed in society. Another aspect of the bill is to replace the welfare culture by giving its participants a real chance to start working and stay working toward economic self-efficiency.

The bill outlines a demonstration program to be conducted in test counties for recipients of AFDC benefits on July 1, 1994, or new applicants for AFDC benefits after June 30, 1994. It also implements a statewide hotline for reporting suspected cases of welfare eligibility fraud, food stamp fraud and Medicaid fraud.

Senate Bill 2846 creates the Mississippi Agribusiness Council. The purpose of the council is to conduct national and international market research to identify trade and investment opportunities; provide special assistance to Mississippi's agricultural producers to develop markets; and to advertise and solicit for production and industrial promotion purposes.

Senate Bill 1633 was referred by the Lieutenant Governor to both the Local and Private and the Finance Committee. The Local and Private Committee amended the bill to allow for more flexible spending by the law. Under the original language, the sheriff's department could only buy cars and equipment but could not pay for the man using the car.

The Finance Committee further amended the bill to give the Library a separate 5 percent instead of being included in the overall educational allotment. The bill was passed by the Senate and sent back to the House for final approval. On April 1, 1993 the Governor signed the bill.

I believe that the 1993 Legislative session will prove to be most profitable for all Mississippians. My desire has always been to see that helpful and necessary legislation is drafted and passed each session.

Although the session is over, I will continue to update you on the most important pieces of legislation that were approved in the past 90 days. My column will address the bills committee by committee.

Submitted by Senator Bill Johnson, who can be reached at P.O. Box 2111, Bay St. Louis, MS 39521.

Board supports fire permitting

BY JACQUI COCHRAN
A resolution requesting a Local and Private Bill for the permitting of fires on public property was approved March 31 by the Hancock County Board of Supervisors.

Jim Maness, a Clermont Harbor firefighter, presented a request from the Hancock County Firefighters Association for a law authorizing local fire departments to issue a permit prior to setting any open fire on public properties.

The law, Maness explained, would give the Sheriff's Department authority to stop fires deemed dangerous before they were set, where now the law only permits action after the fact.

Permits will have to be obtained by written or oral permission from the local fire department which serves the district where the open fire is intended to be set.

Along with date, location and approximate time of fire, the name of a responsible person or organization must be given.

Sheriff Ronnie Peterson stated having a name will help in making people responsible for cleaning up the site following the fire.

Maness described a recent situation when a fire was built along the Beach Boulevard in Clermont Harbor, next to private lands, on the county right of way.

He said the local authorities asked that the fire not be set, but had no power to prohibit the action. The fire was set in spite of objects to the location.

Board members said, the area they expect most affected by the law will be Clermont Harbor beach where open fires are popular during summer months.

Open fires along the beaches of Bay St. Louis and Waveland currently require permits by city fire departments.

The resolution was sent to all three state legislators for action.

Phone scam may spread from La.

Residents are being warned by Hancock County Sheriff's Department of a recently reported phone scam in Louisiana, which may be attempted here.

The scam involves a caller claiming to be a phone company employee or law enforcement officer telling customers that someone has used their telephone calling-card number.

Customers are being asked to help in apprehending the caller by accepting charges for third-party calls.

Anyone receiving such a request should call their local law enforcement department or their long-distance carrier.

County

hold a proposal by Larry O'Neil of Pearlinton and Harvey, La. for a privately owned and operated youth shelter.

O'Neil appeared before the board March 31, stating $50,000 in federal grant monies through the state could be obtained for the construction of a center.

O'Neil said, there are similar facilities located in Adams and Washington counties, but neither are privately operated.

Peterson, Youth Court Judge Ann Williamson and prosecuting attorney John Genin expressed reservations Monday concerning consistency in funding, security, liability and medical responsibility.

Mississippi State Senator Bill Johnson addressed the board on the solid waste program in the county which would include the county and cities of Bay St. Louis and Waveland.

The proposed plan, designed as a joint venture between the bodies, is for garbage disposal and pick-up and recycling.

"You need to get the representatives together from the three bodies, the county, Bay St. Louis and Waveland, and put this thing into motion," he said.

Johnson also told the board that the state wants to see a plan of action from the board on the wastewater disposal systems, including extension of lines and current regulations of building.

"They want to see you doing something and see some action," he said.

"We have applied for a Community Development Block Grant with the state and have an updated plan that we prepared to take with us to Washington, D.C. when we go there to ask for money," said board president Mike Ladner.

"You need to send the plan to the state because they want to see something," said Johnson.

Sam Cuevas addressed the board on the purchase of four 1993 dump trucks. The lowest bid was from Blackwell Chevrolet for $43,932 each.

The board told Cuevas they would approve the purchase during the next board meeting.

Recycle

Bay residents contribute 5½ tons

Bay St. Louis residents recycled more than five and a half tons of household waste and achieved a 62 percent average participation rate during the first week of the city's curbside pick-up program, according to Gulf Coast Recycling's operations director, Kay Hoffman.

As contractor for the curbside project, GCR began weekday route collections on Thursday, April 1, and completed the first week on Wednesday, April 7.

A total of 11,230.4 pounds of recyclables was collected by GCR during the first week, with an average of 14 pounds from each participating household.

Participation rates on the five collection routes ranged from 60 to 79 percent with the highest on Tuesday's route. These rates are based on an average of two set-outs per household per month.

Participants are expected to set out their containers only when they are full or nearly full, Hoffman said. The average three- to four-person household will probably fill its container only twice a month, resulting in two set-outs. Smaller households will fill containers less frequently and larger ones more frequently.

USM-produced coating decreases damage from termites, barnacles

Special to the Echo
By Roger Brinegar
Termite-resistant, barnacle-proof wood and cheaper, readily available sources of lubricants known to be an excellent source of natural rubber, but the Thames Group has taken guayule research to new levels. During the past three years, is when it has a bacteria build-up on it," Thames pointed out. "Apparently the termites need the bacteria in their gut to help them metabolize the wood — so if we keep the bacteria from growing, maybe the termites won't eat it. . . . The same holds true for barnacles," he added.

"This anti-barnacle activity is so encouraging that U.S. Paint Company has committed $140,000 per year for three years in matching money to get this product developed for use in anti-fouling paints," Thames said. "We are talking about a tremendous worldwide market for a product that would sell for more than $200 a gallon."

Anti-fouling paints would allow ships — yachts, pleasure boats, commercial shipping and the nation's military vessels — to sail more economically while requiring less maintenance.

Thames said he does not know when the super paint, or other products produced by his group, will be commercialized. He said creating new markets for "green-plant" products requires convincing farmers to grow the raw product and getting commitments from business and industry to manufacture and market new products.

During the guayule research, Thames said his staff of about 20 students, staff members and research professionals have reduced the number of agents that deter termites and barnacles to seven ingredients. Further cooperative studies at the Gulf Coast Research Laboratory in Ocean Springs are expected to help the scientists understand just how the derivatives work.

"Once we know exactly what the molecule is and how it works, we want to synthesize it in our laboratories," Thames said.

Guayule also has produced another remarkable paint — a 100 percent solid coating that is cured under ultra violet light. According to Thames, no solvents, no odors and no atmospheric pollution are involved in the coating's application process.

In addition to guayule, the Thames Group also is working with some other "promising" plants, including lesquerella and kenaf.

"Lesquerella is going to be an interesting plant," Thames said. "We know that it produces a substance almost like castor oil (considered a strategic resource), but the lesquerella derivative may be better."

Thames said the oil extracted from lesquerella could be used as a high-performance lubricant for military tanks and jet aircraft. The plant's derivatives also can be used as excellent disbursement agents for paint/coating pigments, and to produce foams for automotive and furniture insulation and padding.

Although the research is in its beginning stages, Thames said kenaf (which is now grown in the Mississippi Delta) has long fibers that show promise as reinforcement filaments for a variety of polymer products.

New coating

Dr. Shelby Thames, USM research professor, holds two samples of wood coatings, one of which was produced in the laboratories of USM's Polymer Science Research Complex. The samples were submerged in salt water for a period of four months at the Gulf Coast Research Laboratory in Ocean Springs. The sample on the left is encrusted with marine barnacles while the USM-made sample on the right is barnacle free. USM scientists say the discovery could lead to the manufacture of a new anti-fouling coating for all types of marine vessels.

for the nation's military are among goals of a polymer science research group at the University of Southern Mississippi.

The Thames Group — led by Dr. Shelby Thames, the first chairman of USM's Polymer Science Department and currently a distinguished university research professor — is working with a number of "green" plants to produce new and better paints, coatings, foams and other "environmentally friendly" products.

One of those plants, guayule (y-you-lee), is a wild shrub common to the southwest United States. For years, it has been the group has produced a variety of experimental products from the plant, including paints and coatings that dramatically have decreased wood damage from termites and saltwater barnacles.

"Basically, we go wherever the raw material composition takes us," Thames said. "In the case of guayule, we have found a fraction of the plant is biologically active, and we have found that the plant's activity has a reaction against wood rot and fungi," he said.

"Termites aren't supposed to eat wood that is not rotting. The only time they will attack wood

COOKING UP A STORM

Leftover Easter eggs can be the start of a great lunch

Easter, great feast of the Christian year, embodies many pre-Christian traditions as well. The name is generally believed to have derived from Eastre, the Anglo-Saxon name for the Teutonic goddess of Spring and fertility.

Traditions associated with this pagan festival survive down to this day in the Easter Rabbit, symbol of fertility, and in colored eggs which were originally painted in bright hues, representing the sunshine of Spring.

In addition to the religious traditions associated with Easter, this holiday celebration is enriched by native customs from many lands, handed down through the generations.

For example, in Ireland young people were expected to marry before Lent, providing a final celebration before the Lenten fast and solemnity. Bachelors who "copped out" were sprinkled with salt "to keep them fresh until next Shrove-tide" and were subjected to all sorts of pranks.

Special Easter breads and cakes are also a custom around the world, and from the Emerald Isle comes still another tradition — "taking the cake." Have you ever wondered whence the expression comes, "He takes the cake?"

It comes from an old Easter Eve custom. A tasty cake was placed in a pub or at a crossroads, and the men danced to compete for it. The winner "took the cake" and gave it to his sweetheart!

And, speaking of cake and Easter breads, bread baked on Good Friday was considered lucky in many European lands, so much so that sailors carried loaves with them on long voyages as protection against shipwreck; and housewives kept a loaf all through the year to protect the house from fire. Wonder how the bread tasted after all that time!

And, if you've wondered why the Easter Bunny brings eggs, like no other rabbit, some researchers say that the Easter Bunny traces his ancestry back to a bird. It seems that Eastre, goddess of Spring, amused a group of children one day by turning her pet bird into a rabbit; that's why the Easter Bunny likes grassy nests and brightly colored eggs!

The egg is a natural symbol of Easter, as a sign of rebirth and renewal; and in ancient times the egg was the symbol of Spring itself. Early Christians had adopted the egg as a symbol of the Resurrection by the time of the Middle Ages, and an Easter gift of colored eggs had become a token of affection.

And, so it is today; but that leaves us with the little matter of using up the excess hard-cooked eggs after the children and grownups have had the fun of coloring the eggs and after the Easter Egg Hunts and all that!

For my part, I am quite partial to stuffed eggs, so that solves much of my leftover problem. I also like Creole eggs: halved, hard-cooked eggs covered with a zesty tomatoey-spicy Creole sauce, with a mound of creamed potatoes alongside.

Of course, there's egg salad and sliced hard-cooked eggs in fresh spinach salad and shrimp salad. Or, perhaps, having eaten all the boiled shrimp on hand, probably I'll make Eggs Remoulade, with the spicy sauce meant for the shrimp, just halved hard-cooked eggs atop shredded lettuce, topped in turn by the sauce. Here's:

Nereids plans '94 ball, parade

The Krewa of Nereids announces dates for their 28th ball masque and parade. The annual Mardi Gras ball will be Jan. 22, 1994, and the parade will roll Feb. 6.

Some 75 officers and members of the carnival organization attended the semi-annual general meeting at the Waveland Resort Inn.

Nereids officers and members evaluated the '93 ball and parade and began plans for the 1994 Mardi Gras season. The captain of Nereids reported that community response to the '93 season was more enthusiastic than ever.

The first of the fund-raisers this year will be an Italian feast to be held at the Hancock County Civic Center April 25. The outstanding volunteer chefs, Chuck Breath, John Hansel and Harold Hitt, have been the talk of the Coast every year that Nereids has sponsored this spaghetti dinner.

Tickets are available from Nereids members or Waveland Drug Store. Donation is $5. The dinner features take-outs, free delivery, or dining in from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the civic center.

Time-saving tips for dinners

Grab your fork ... get set ... go!

Preparing dinner can feel like competing in a marathon when it's the last leg of a long work day. It doesn't have to be that way. Family meals can be practically effortless if just a few, readily-available ingredients are used in easy recipes.

Some great-tasting beef dishes, for instance, can be on the table in less than 30 minutes. That converts kitchen time into time to enjoy a family meal.

Quick meals are a matter of advance planning and being familiar with the versatile nature of basic foods. Lean beef is a good example of a food that can be prepared in a variety of convenient, tasty recipes.

Quick-cooking methods for beef include broiling, panbroiling, stir-frying, grilling and microwaving. Some suggested convenient beef cuts include ground beef, top loin, round, sirloin and ribeye steaks and tenderloin.

Remember that convenient beef meals include far more than simple steaks. Strips of stir-fried or leftover cooked beef can be added to salads, soups, casseroles, sandwiches or pasta for easy, hearty dishes.

Additionally, cooking and cleanup can be speeded along if potato wedges or other vegetables are broiled on the same pan as beef steaks or patties.

Reviewing recipes before starting to cook can help keep efforts organized. And, be sure to keep good, time-saving recipes on file to encourage fast menu planning and easy shopping.

The following recipes are ideal file-starters. Delicious Sherried Steak Strips can be prepared in 15 minutes and served with mixed vegetables in a colorful dinner. Leftover steak strips can be used later to supplement stir-fry or other quick dishes.

Pita Burgers with Cucumber-Yogurt Sauce takes advantage of easy ground beef cookery to create an extraordinary family meal, flavored with a pepper-herb mixture and
